Vice-President, Treasurer and Business Manager.
WM. A. SPALDING, Secretary.

"The Times" has a larger bona fide circulation than any other newspaper published in southern California.

The St. Louis Republican, a Democratic paper, pays the following graceful tribute to Senator Sherman:

Next to Blaine, Senator Sherman is intellectually the strongest among the prominent Republicans. He represents Republicans even better than Blaine.

SEVERAL amendments have been made by the Ways and Means Committee in Mills' Tariff Bill. Present indications are that the bill will be reported to the House in the early part of next week, although the committee has not yet formally directed a report to be made.

THE Pasadena Star of Monday came out with the following startling headlines, over one of its telegraphic columns: "Jim Blaine; A Bloody German Attempts to Kill His Wife." Upon further perusal, we were relieved to find that it was not Mrs. Blaine, but a German's wife, whom it was attempted to kill.

THIS is the way that other cities look at the matter of railroad franchises. An eastern exchange says:

A railroad bill before the Ohio Legislature to extend the charters of street railways for 50 years. Fifty years is altogether too long a time to put street railways beyond the power of legislation. A great many things may happen in 50 years.

How well has Los Angeles considered this?

THE purchase of the services of the Erie system by Wells, Fargo & Co. places that company on a superior footing, giving it the only through express transcontinental line. Wells Fargo's Express is deservedly a favorite on this coast, especially among old timers. It is one of the few corporations that have treated the public fairly and generously.

THAT is a tender and natural solicitation for the butcher Anschlag that the Oakland Tribune indulges in when it says:

In Los Angeles, when they have a desperate murderer in jail under sentence of death, they put him in a rotten cell to die out for his life. It was only by accident that the murderer, who was serving his way out, if that's not employ a death watch pretty soon Anschlag may hurt himself by pulling the whole crumbling structure about his ears.

A fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind."

IS Rhode Island the third party forced a prohibition amendment through, and there has been a good chance to observe its workings. The following extract from the Providence Journal would seem to show that prohibition does not always prohibit:

The State of Rhode Island is in a condition where rum is sold openly and without restraint wherever there is a market for it. A constitutional law forbids its manufacture or sale, but there was a time when it was manufactured and sold on an extent. Saloons have multiplied and the trade goes on without restraint and without regard to the state, while fines are already crippled by the loss of income from it.

THE enterprise for the manufacture of glass in this city, referred to a short time ago in these columns, has by no means been abandoned, although nothing has been made public regarding it of late. A company has been organized and experimental work on a small scale, to show the possibility of the scheme, is to be commenced at once. Los Angeles at present needs nothing more than manufacturers, and any legitimate efforts to establish such industries should receive all possible encouragement. We trust that this undertaking, which is of a bona fide character, may prove entirely successful and encourage others to enter the field.

WALTER G. SMITH of San Diego, who we are informed, is an editorial writer on the Sun of that place, has been contributing a series of letters to the Ithaca Journal, in which he paints Southern California in such an unfavorable light that one is surprised that he cares to continue to remain here. Below are a few of the compliments he pays to Southern California in general and San Diego in particular:

I have to convince my readers that 26 cents saved among the civilized comforts of New York State is more to be desired than a dollar earned in this country of sand, sandal, drouths, landslides and deserts.

I want to emphasize the fact that people in poor health would soon sink in the mud as they would a plough. Besides, I have described it as a port of entry for yellow fever and other maladies of the southern coast.

Food is cheap, and it ought to be, considering the cost of living elsewhere. Butter is strong (this, however, costs $1 a roll); eggs are fat and stale; ham and bacon are afflicted with cholera, measles, scarlet fever or any other infectious malady!

Again, who is to decide whether the patient really has smallpox? The doctors have most assuredly very plainly shown their inability to do so. This was shown for the hundredth time

The Price of Land.

Occasionally we meet people who talk about the high price of land in Southern California, and complainingly contrast the purchasing price here with the selling price which they realized in disposing of their farms at the East. These people do not properly weigh the fact that there are a good many things to be taken into consideration which tend to make lands here really cheap even when bought at twice or three times the figures of the market price in less favored sections.

Take for instance the recent blizzard, accompanied by heavy fall of snow, which visited so many of the Atlantic States. A careful estimate places the loss resulting from that storm at $27,000,000. The damage direct and indirect in New York city alone is placed at $7,000,000. In addition to this financial loss is the untold amount of suffering consequent upon the storm, and the loss of life resulting therefrom. When these things are taken into consideration the difference in relative value does not seem so great.

It is worth something to live in a country where we are beyond the possibility of such experiences. Our climatic conditions are such that any such devastation could be wrought here but not such suffering ever be encountered.

The soil is also a hundred-fold more productive than the farms of the older States. Here it is harvest time all the year, and the farmer's life is not one of hardship and bitter contest with overpowering heat or deadly cold. Sunstroke is not a danger of our harvest fields, nor does frost endanger our late crops. The farmer puts in his crops and he is reasonably sure of a generous harvest. Summer drouths do not affect him. It is the condition needed to mature his crops. When the winter rains fall copiously he is satisfied and feels confident of a year of prosperity. He has not got so many contingencies to contend with as has the Eastern farmer, for Nature keeps faith with him better. Thus he can throw off in a large degree the burden of anxiety that afflicted him in the old home. Rid of this, the physical and mental strain is lessened, and half the weight of the years is lifted from him. He retains his physical strength and energy as it would have been impossible to have retained them in the struggle for a competency with all the odds against him in the old home. Hence life is worth more to him here. Existence does not mean a constant battling with opposing forces, and his labor is not employed at a disadvantage. Nature does her best to supplement his efforts in whatever direction they are put forth; and with patient industry and skilled endeavor he is destined to succeed.

Land here is not, as in the older agricultural sections of the country, worn out and exhausted. It is largely virgin soil, which, when properly tilled, will yield abundantly. The productivity of agricultural lands in Southern California is a marvel to the tenderfoot. Take for instance the great grain fields of the San Fernando Valley, which yield an average of thirty-five bushels of wheat to the acre. Consider the alfalfa lands, yielding from six to eight crops of nutritious grasses annually; or the strawberry and tomato patches in various sections, producing crops annually valued at from $700 to $1,000. Then there are the orange and grape lands, from which most generous returns are received. Should the lands of Southern California be considered high when they yield such generous returns, and all the climatic conditions for physical comfort are so perfect? We think not.

An Outrageous Proposition.

Our contemporary, the Herald, very pertinently calls attention to an obnoxious clause in the proposed charter, which gives the authorities power to forcibly take persons stricken with variola from their homes and place them in the pesthouse. The only fault we have to find with our contemporary's article is the assertion that the proposed charter contains much more objectionable clauses than this.

We are unable to conceive of any provision that would be much more objectionable or outrageous. Smallpox is made more of a bug-a-boo than there is any necessity for. There are other diseases more dangerous and infectious, about which no such general scare is raised. What right have the authorities to single out any single disease as an excuse for such an autocratic regulation as this? If they can order smallpox patients to a public pesthouse, then why not also those afflicted with cholera, measles, scarlet fever or any other infectious malady?

Again, who is to decide whether the patient really has smallpox? The doctors have most assuredly very plainly shown their inability to do so. This was shown for the hundredth time during the recent outbreak of the disease in San Francisco, where the Health Officer sent several persons to the pesthouse who were merely suffering from some form of skin eruption.

An Englishman boasts that his house is his castle. The home of an American should certainly be as sacred from enforced intrusion. Imagine the feelings of a parent who sees his delicately-nurtured child seized and carried off from a comfortable home, which is provided with all necessary comforts, to be placed in a rickety building, possibly—as has recently happened here—under charge of a drunken keeper, and then, perhaps, to discover, after the patient has been exposed to contagion, that the ailment was nothing worse than a case of chickenpox.

This provision of the charter is sufficient to damn the whole instrument, and comes with especial bad grace at a time when the scandalous revelations of incompetency in the San Francisco and Los Angeles pesthouses are fresh in the public mind.

THE House Committee on Public Lands has decided to report favorably the bill for the forfeiture of the lands of the Southern Pacific in Southern California through which that company has not constructed its road.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN says he won't be able to buy back knuckles any more. It's a pity he didn't say that before the recent encounter.

AMUSEMENTS.

HAZARD'S PAVILION.—A large audience witnessed the performance of "The Hot" evening presented by the Pyke Opera Company. The management, in accordance with the many requests, has decided to present for the last time, this evening, "Oath of Love" instead of "Fledermaus," which has been previously announced. This change will, no doubt, be met with general satisfaction by the patrons of comic opera, inasmuch as it is one of the best in the repertoire of the Pyke Opera. "Oath of Love" for the last evening, "Bastard Friday," "Sardou," and Sunday nights and "Black Mantles" on the Saturday matinee.

MEN AND WOMEN OF THE COAST.

W. W. JACK, a prominent mining man of Butte City, Mont., is in San Francisco. George Herold, who was burned at the Walla Walla (Wash.) fire, has died of his injuries. Judge ASA HOWARD, who is lying dangerously ill at his residence in Oakland, is not expected to recover.

Jesse B. BLAINE, the pioneer lawyer of San Francisco, is lying at the point of death at his residence in the city. He is the son of the man who founded the city.

Ex-M. E. W. H. Poyer of Oakland, now in Honolulu, has notified the Oakland Y.M.C.A. that he will donate $500 to the building fund of that organization.

Mayor EYER of Santa Cruz, having declined the invitation of his opponents to resign, and the city having since then voted bonds for the purchase of water works, the Sentinel announces that the present Mayor and City Council "will not be allowed to purchase water works or pay for engines, as taxpayers are resolved to commence suits and lay injunctions till the present board is dead by limitation of law."

BRINGING A RICH MAN TO TERMS.

How a Chicago Real-estate Agent Bluffed the Millionaire Astor.

The Chicago Herald tells the following story about William W. Astor, late Minister to Italy: A Chicago real-estate agent was in New York some years ago attempting to buy a large tract of land in the city of New York, and the agent called upon Astor to see if he could not be induced to sell. Astor agreed to meet him at the office of his attorney, and the agent called upon him and told him that he wanted to buy the tract of land which he had been offered.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

The Town of Arlington, Or., Almost Destroyed—The Principal Losers.

PORTLAND, March 21.—[By the Associated Press.] A fire broke out this afternoon at 3 o'clock in this town. It was first discovered in H. S. Compton's drugstore, and before anything could be done the flames passed beyond control. The fire then caught D. S. Sprinkles & Co.'s store building and burned the whole block, including the Arlington Times building, the post office, the building of J. Q. Adams' vacant building, the building of M. C. Harris, J. E. Haskins' old blacksmith shop, and a young lady, about 25 years of age, and teacher in the public schools, who was in the drugstore. The fire spread rapidly, and the building was soon a total wreck.

THE fire was started by a boy who was in the drugstore. The boy was a member of the fire department, and he was trying to extinguish the fire when he was overcome by smoke. He was then carried to the drugstore, and he was soon dead.

OLD SHANTIES.

A BIG FIRE AMONG THE SPRING STREET SHEDS.

The Fire Starts in Mrs. Hunter's Restaurant - The Fire Department Heads On the "Fellows Who Want Fine Buildings."

A fire alarm was turned in yesterday at 12:30 from the corner of Spring and Second streets. The Main street and Plaza companies responded, and when they arrived found the second story of the Hunter dining-rooms, at 125 Spring, in a brisk blaze.

The engines took the ping and in a few seconds three streams were playing on the fire. The building is one of a row of eight wooden structures. A steady breeze was blowing to the eastward, and the flames having a good start spread rapidly, soon communicated to the adjacent roofs. The occupants became alarmed and began to carry out their goods until the street in front was filled with boxes and barrels and merchandise of all kinds.

The Empire livery stable, containing about fifty horses and a number of buggies, caught from a spark, and the animals and vehicles were hurried out to a place of safety.

The fire laddies did very creditable work, considering the location and the start the flames had before the alarm was sent in. They fought the fire about two hours before completely quenching it, and then not until three buildings were gutted. The boys were greatly hampered by the large crowd which gathered upon the scene and impeded their movements on all sides. Being just at the noon hour, many people were on the scene going to and from lunch, and it seemed every idle man in the city had some particular interest in the fire. They hurried here and there over the fire line, and their efforts to where the men were engaged, and were not to be driven away until an order was given to turn the hoses in their direction. Then every man was at his post on the street.

Three houses were unroofed and extensively damaged by water, and in the case of the Hunter building very little of value was saved.

How the fire originated is a mystery as yet unsolved. Over the Hunter dining-rooms were several furnished rooms, which were occupied by the help of the establishment. New door locks were found on the door of George P. Taylor. He had several men at work upstairs, and through the cracks in the partition they scented the smoke and smoke and fire. They ran up to the roof and saw the fire and the "spook" and "fire" and See Bust and one of the restaurant waiters ran upstairs. The flames had by this time burned through the partition, and all the men who had been working in the room. Then as always was turned in.

The greatest damage done was in the Hunter restaurant. It was sold about six months ago to Mr. Clark & Benjamin, the present proprietors, by Mrs. F. Taylor. Much of the furniture and goods were saved by being carried into the street, so the loss can hardly be estimated. The entire outfit was valued at $6000 and was insured for $5000.

The building, valued at $3000, which was almost a total loss, was the property of E. W. Ward, who was formerly a carriage factor, but three years ago is now owned by Robert McGrath and fitted up for Mrs. Hunter at a cost of $1000. McGrath had an insurance policy of $1500 in the Southern Fire Insurance Company, and he and his wife held a joint policy in the same company for $1000. McGrath's lease would have expired in about six months.

The other buildings which were occupied each by several branches of business, and in nearly all the goods were damaged by water. In Taylor's tailor shop everything was saved, but there was not little damage to that, fully $1000. Mr. J. W. Taylor, jeweler, with a stock valued at $4000, saved all. F. W. McBarney, harness and saddle maker, saved $1000 in the Sun of London, $600 damage to his leather & Gray, barber shop, valued at $500, loss $300, no insurance. E. C. Webster, cigar stand stock of $150, damaged about $50. Charles Moore, meat market, $1000. Moses & Drake, print shop, goods about $300. These buildings were the property of Moore & Reichart, and were fully insured.

BEING PUNISHED.

The Texas Woman Who Left Her Husband for a Lover in Trouble.

The ways of the evil-doer are hard, and the woman who recently ran away from her husband at Uvalde, Tex., with a man she met and carried through with him to this city, is beginning to realize the fact. The scoundrel, who induced the woman, whose name is Katie Williams, to elope with him for some time acted as janitor of the Law Library, but a short time ago he mysteriously disappeared from the scene, and nothing further was known about him until he returned to Los Angeles, accompanied by the woman and child. When informed of the fact, the police chief, the Chief of Police Cuddy to arrest and hold the parties, thus throwing light on the doubtful relation in which the couple stood one to the other. Williams is said to be the mother of the two and seemed very anxious to have the matter settled.

Yesterday R. C. O. Benjamin, the colored lawyer, presented a writ of habeas corpus against the woman, and the United States Superior Court, and very speedily had Twine released from custody. The understanding between the lawyer and his client was that the woman should be given a chance to make good her escape, and that the steps should be taken for the release of his freedom as soon as he made himself scarce, and, so far, all the efforts of theベンチ and the law have been unavailing. Meantime the woman, whom he has brought away from his friends, is in great grief at the unpleasing position in which she is placed.

BAD "INJUNS."

Col. Preston Interviewed-The Indians Will Be Brought to San Diego.

Col. J. W. Preston, Indian Agent at Colton, who has been stopping at the St. Elmo, left for Colton and San Diego yesterday. While here he stated to a Times reporter that United States Commissioner Vandyke had issued warrants for the arrest of the Indians at Yuma charged with causing the death of the Indian Sweetroot at that place several days ago. The United States Marshal has sent a deputy to Yuma to arrest the suspected Indians, and they will be brought to this city for examination before the court. At the same time Col. Preston will again come here. "Sweetroot" was an Indian policeman.

Col. Preston expressed gratification at the United States' taking the measures to give the Mission Indians a home in severality, and stated that while there may be some who ought not to be given land, the majority were in an opinion capable of caring for it. Their lands are now in operation all at once, but would be a gradual work of making the Indians self-supporting. The bill was essentially the same as the one put forward by the Indians, but it was anticipated that a special agent would be sent from Washington to see it in operation. The adult Indians were to be given 160 acres, and the children an allotment which would be made to them.

THE SANTA FE'S ATTORNEY.

Judge Brunson Tells What He Thinks of the Strike.

Ex-Judge Brunson, attorney for the Santa Fe, was seen by a reporter yesterday, and stated that he believed that it was generally conceded that the strike had been ill-advised, but that no feeling against the men was held by the officials of the company, as they had taken good care of its property, and had struck up the order of their chief. The men had no grudge against the company, and he believed the business of the railroad more along lines of peace without friction. He did not wish to express any legal opinion upon the matter of the strike. The officers of the company were expressing any further interference with its business, and he thought the trouble was all over.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

A Gang of Young Men Frightened-The Tribune's Theft.

The bubble story about the haunted house has been pretty well exploded, but a rather amusing incident occurred on Tuesday night that shows how stupidly superstitious some people are, and how they take delight in swallowing wholesale any "cock and bull" story they hear, particularly if it has a shade of the "uncanny" about it.

A party of eight young fellows, late on Tuesday night, sallied forth from one of the semi-fashionable boarding-houses to investigate the ghost story. Fortified with the knowledge that the ghost story was a lie, and that the world, who by this time refused to go with them, the party started off in good spirits. One of their number took along with him a gun and enveloped the most gaudy of the trimmings of the haunted house with lively strains. On reaching the top of the ascent the little band of explorers gathered in a knot and discussed the advisability of proceeding. The moon was peeping with fitful glances from behind the fast, sounding clouds, and the dim light made the house appear like a ghostly apparition of a house that is haunted. The young fellows now that they had reached the goal of their ambition, didn't seem to be particularly interested in the ghost story, so to remedy matters the guitar was brought into requisition, and after a lively tune—the band of explorers, who had been looking forward to a game of cards, were soon in a sweat.
